After dinner, the 6 living members were greeted with standing ovations as they were inducted. Bernard Daenzer '34 was unable to attend the dinner but videotaped his acceptance comments. Bernard's grandson, Christopher Daenzer, accepted his certificate of induction.

We owe thanks to many people: The generous benefactors who made it possible for faculty members to attend: the Nominating Committee for their work in selecting a memorable slate of inductees; committee chairman Jack Geraghty '60, for keeping the process honest and fair and for his work as Inductor at the dinner; the Dinner Committee for their work in organizing a quality event; Master of Ceremonies Principal Bob Gomprecht '65 for keeping the event ahead of schedule; Robert Moschetta '90 and the staff of Entertainment and Sounds Unlimited for the work on the audio and video for the dinner; and Hall of Honor Dinner Coordinator Mary Pinkowish for keeping the whole process on track.

We look forward to the next Hall of Honor Induction Dinner, which will take place on Friday, November 18, 2011, and we hope that you join us.

From the President's Office

As you look through this edition of Ramview you capture a snapshot of our varied activities centered in the past, the present and the future as we strive to educate and form the young men who are Fordham Prep today.

The science and classroom facilities which we dedicated with style thanks to Joe Bastianich '85 and his crew from Becco restaurant have given a real shot in the arm to our talented science department. Since they no longer have to share space with several teachers and there are computers at each station, the teachers are engaging the students in more sophisticated and in-depth laboratory experiments. The students are thus more deeply involved in their science learning. Enthusiasm for science is at an all time high.

We inducted another cohort into the Hall of Honor in November. Our plans are to create a permanent, interactive display in the Hall of Honor. In this way, today's students can learn about the achievements of the various inductees of different eras. By presenting them with role models of achievement in a variety of walks of life, we can challenge them to reach their potential in the service of our world.

Bob Gomprecht is writing at greater length about our study of the topic of immigration this year. At the beginning of the assembly for the whole school, I asked for a show of hands among the 1,000 + students and faculty in the theater: how many were born in another country? How many have at least one parent born in another country? As they looked around the room at the 29% of our family who are either immigrants or the sons of immigrants, they came to the realization that this is not just an abstract policy issue but a lived reality in our community.

We continue to welcome and serve the young men whose families have journeyed from five continents in search of a better life for their sons. We continue to be enriched by the varied traditions these young men share with our family.

The old and the new continue on. As to the future – we are about to register the class of 2014. Wow!

Sincerely,

Kenneth J. Boller, SJ
President

From the Principal's Desk

Ken Boller points out in his article above that 29% of the Prep students have at least one parent who is foreign-born. Our records indicate that this has been the tradition back into the mid 1900's. It may go back even further but documentation is incomplete. Over the years, the list of countries has broadened, but the challenges of immigration have been part of the lives of many Prep families for a very long time. Today at the Prep, we discuss immigration within the larger framework of social justice. The Catholic Church and the Society of Jesus in particular, are at the forefront of efforts to champion principles of social justice.

Our students study Catholic social teaching from the time they are freshmen. They grow in the understanding of their personal responsibility to serve others through curriculum, assemblies, special events, other efforts which focus on various social justice issues, and our well-articulated Service Program.

In addition, we have decided to choose one significant social justice issue and spend a year or more educating the Prep community, having special presentations, and giving students and faculty opportunities to work as activists for change. We chose immigration as our first topic due to the nature of our community and the national discourse on the issue. Our Social Justice committee has met regularly for almost a year, often bringing in experienced consultants such as Fr. Brian Jordan, O.F.M., founder of the Holy Name Province Labor-Immigration Project and Fr. Mark Hallinan, S.J., Assistant for Social Ministries for the New York Province of the Society of Jesus. Its efforts have led to a coordinated series of activities to help hone our understanding of immigration issues and to involve our community in the struggle for justice.

The committee's efforts have led to special presentations to our sophomores and freshmen, articles in our two news publications, Ramview and The Objective, and discussions on our Campus Ministry Boards to apply the principles of Catholic Social Teaching to immigration questions. (Our Campus Ministry Boards are made up of 130 students from sophomore, junior, and senior year who meet weekly for personal spiritual development and to plan various ministry events) The Prep has also joined the Ignatian Solidarity Network (ISN), a national organization which promotes communication, education, social justice awareness and action among Jesuit institutions. Eight students and four teachers traveled to the ISN Teach-in on Immigration in Washington, D.C. for a series of keynotes and presentations to help them understand the issues and to get training in how to work for change. These students and teachers lobbied in Washington with aides for Senator Schumer and Congressman Serrano on the need for immigration reform, presented the necessity for comprehensive immigration reform to various grade levels back at the Prep, and recruited upwards of 65 students and faculty to join the Church's campaign on immigration reform. They also joined with our Social Justice Committee to organize a school assembly in December. During the assembly, the school watched one video prepared by a Prep teacher whose family consisted of relatively recent immigrants. It detailed their story including their contributions and their pride in America. A second video presented the story of a staff member, himself an immigrant, and his struggles to come this country. And, a student presented the story of his father who immigrated from Ireland and has worked to give his family a good life in this country. Jill Gershutz, from the Social and International Ministries office of the Jesuit Conference, then addressed the school.

At the assembly's conclusion, I mentioned Theodore Cardinal McCarrick, the retired archbishop of Washington, D.C. who has been one of the Church's strongest advocates for justice for immigrants. Cardinal McCarrick graduated from Fordham Prep in 1949. Although recognized as someone whose own commitment to social justice and our shared obligation to care for the poor is outstanding, Cardinal McCarrick has pointed out that his entire family is filled with heroes and heroines who truly personify these characteristics. He described them as folks who came from Ireland with nothing, and who worked and studied and struggled for a new life while, during that struggle, never forgetting to help their neighbor. In a recent speech following his testimony to a Congressional Committee on Immigration, Cardinal McCarrick spoke words to the Committee that I quoted because they fit so perfectly.

"In closing, I would like to encourage you to continue your efforts to help immigrants and others who come to our land. If you are new to this mission, I pray that this meeting will inspire you to become involved... Just a few years ago... I was asked how I could be optimistic of success in the light of the political divisions in our country. The press event was ending and there was no time for a detailed reply, so I simply answered in Spanish. "Hay que sonar" – one has to dream. That is no longer an acceptable response. This time we must do more. We have to change what is broken, otherwise more people will suffer. We have to be courageous and persistent and change the system. The time of dreaming is over, the new day calls to work for change. In the end, by opening the door to the stranger, we are opening the door to Christ in our lives."

I pointed out that when Father Boller spoke at the beginning of the assembly, it was obvious that all of us have immigrant roots. And, our families have their own heroes and heroines who came to America for a new life and never forgot to help their neighbors. It is our responsibility to follow in their footsteps and to work together for reform that is fair and just, and that respects the rights and dignity of all immigrants and other members of our society.

Our efforts at the Prep to inform ourselves about immigration will continue into next year. Our endeavors to generate understanding and commitment within our community to bring the principles of Catholic Social Teaching to bear on social issues will continue forever. This is one of the important legacies left us by Ignatius of Loyola.

President's Dinner & Dedication

President's Dinner & Dedication of Facilities

October 2, 2009

On the evening of October 2nd, some 200 guests, alumni, parents and friends, joined Fr. Boller and members of the Board of Trustees for a tour of the Prep's new facilities, featuring laboratories for biology, chemistry and physics and cocktails on the new Faculty Terrace, a dedication ceremony in the Leonard Theatre and a splendid dinner provided by celebrity oenophile and restaurateur, Joseph Bastianich (Prep Class of 1985) and the staff of Becco restaurant on Manhattan's West Side. The weather threatened, but the rain stayed away until the valet parking had delivered the last vehicle to departing guests. As the attending photographs make clear, the evening was the perfect mix of fellowship and fun, with appropriate recognition accorded the generosity of the alumni, parents and friends and the blessings that have been bestowed upon Fordham Prep since the school's founding in 1841.

From Joan Wollman, Director of Annual Giving

My heartfelt thanks to Prep alumni for their enthusiastic and generous response to the 2010 Phonothon appeal! And, my profound thanks to the volunteers who made the Phonothon a success.

To date, more than 450 alumni have made pledges of support for the Prep's 2010 Annual Fund, but we need your gift to reach our ambitious goal. If our volunteers were unable to reach you, there is still time to add your name to our list of donors to this important cause.

The easy way to make your gift is to go to www.fordhamprepconnect.org and click on "Giving"

Gifts for Scholarships and Financial Aid

- Gifts that provide scholarships and student financial aid are among the most important contributions that an alumnus or friend can make to Fordham Prep.
- Gifts for scholarships and financial aid mean important educational opportunities for students who have earned the privilege of attending Fordham Prep, but who lack the resources to accept offers of admission.
- Gifts for scholarships and financial aid help families who can muster a portion of the costs, but who cannot manage the full burden of even a modest tuition charge.
- Gifts of scholarships and financial aid allow the Prep to recruit the brightest and the best to its student ranks, in keeping with the School's 168 year-old tradition of educational excellence.
- Gifts for scholarships and financial aid preserve the tradition of ethnic and economic diversity in the student community as the keystone of Jesuit education at Fordham Prep.

Ways of Making Gifts for Scholarships and Financial Aid

1. Gifts in any amount may be made to the Prep's General Scholarship Fund. This Fund is a central resource that the President and the Director of Financial Aid may draw from in addressing the needs and merits of individual students.
2. Gifts in the amount of the current rate of tuition ($13,810 for FY 2010) will ensure that a worthy but needy student can attend Fordham Prep for one full year.
3. Gifts (single or cumulative) in the amount of $300,000* will serve to endow a full scholarship in perpetuity at Fordham Prep. Awards from named endowed scholarship funds are the most prestigious form of recognition for students at Fordham Prep. Only students who give evidence of genuine financial need and outstanding academic performance can be the recipients of funds from one of the Prep's fully endowed scholarships.

Further Information About Gifts for Scholarships and Financial Aid

To discuss ways and means of making gifts for scholarships and financial aid at Fordham Prep, please call John Bradley, Vice President, Development & Alumni Relations (718) 584-8378 (Direct).

The amount required for a fully endowed scholarship reflects the rate of tuition and the Board of Trustees' policy regarding the stewardship of the Prep's financial assets.*

Prep Students write to their Benefactors

Each year, Prep students who receive financial aid and scholarships write to their benefactors to thank them for their support and update them on their progress. These are samples of their letters.

From a Freshman

I have three brothers, two sisters and two parents. When I first came to the Prep as a Just Looker (JL), I knew right away that this school was the school for me. Unfortunately, the bad economy hurt my family's income so there was a good chance I might not have been able to come to the Prep. Luckily, you were kind enough to donate enough money for me to go here and I thank you so much. Thank you so much for your generous donations and help.

From a Sophomore

I am currently a sophomore at Fordham Prep. I come from the Bronx where I live with both of my parents. I would like to thank you for helping us pay for our tuition. I would not be able to come to Fordham Prep without your assistance. You have given me an opportunity to meet new friends, join clubs and sports teams and go to the school of my choice. Thank you for everything you have done for me. I really appreciate your help.

From a Junior

Needless to say, I would not be attending the school of my dreams without your gracious assistance. Thank you! Your sacrifice has helped change my life and definitely brought a peace of heart to my mother. I will personally owe you every day I attend the Prep and all my slightest and biggest achievements in the future will be to your credit as well.

From a Senior

The past few days, I have been thinking about my whole experience at Fordham Prep and I must say it has been a great one. Thanks to your generous assistance, I have been lucky enough to receive a great Jesuit education that will lead me on a path to success. During these holidays, I am glad I have a lot to be thankful for and I am especially thankful for you. Thank you for everything, this would not be possible without you.

From the Chaplain

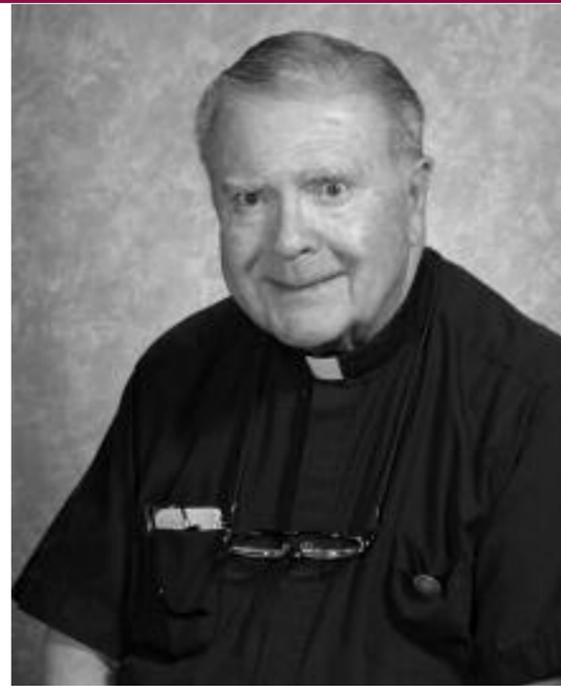

Fr. Don Devine, S.J.

I graduated from another Jesuit high school in 1951 before joining the Jesuits. From 1959-79, I was involved as a teacher, department head and chaplain in metropolitan area Jesuit schools and then as principal at Canisius high school in Buffalo. Later I was superintendent of NY Jesuit high schools from 1979-84. After serving as President of Xavier in Truk, I moved to McQuaid in Rochester until 1988 when I was assigned to 15 years at Loyola retreat house in Morristown, NJ and parish ministry in Buffalo.

As a younger Jesuit, I had certain dreams – a progressive program of retreats for students in our high schools, an ongoing exposure and involvement of our students in service opportunities to less fortunate individuals and minorities both in school and outside the building in local communities, more active participation by all staff members in our Ignatian vision through personal prayer and religious involvement forming young men who were concerned about and committed to serving others after graduation.

I have been amazed after 20 years away from Jesuit secondary schools to discover that what I thought were ‘impossible dreams’ have become realities. It’s exciting in one’s seventies to discover that our schools have become even better Jesuit schools than we experienced in our days of happy memory. Surprising, probably! Unlikely, yes! Impossible, no! It’s happening!

I’m happy and proud to be at Fordham Prep as faculty chaplain. While we Jesuits are getting older in all of our high schools, our lay colleagues are committed to our Ignatian ideals and goals and are ready to replace us as we prepare to turn over responsibility for our ongoing Ignatian tradition of education of youth. As Pope Benedict reminds all Christians, we are called to be a people of hope. I, for one, truly believe that we shall have an even better tomorrow. Different, yes! But be grateful for our past and leave the future in God’s hands as St. Ignatius always taught us.

Fr. Don Devine, S.J.

10 PRINCIPLES OF

Human Dignity

The Catholic Church proclaims that human life is sacred and that the dignity of the person is at the core of a moral vision for society. Our belief in the sanctity of human life and the inherent dignity of the human person is the foundation of all the principles of our social teaching.

Community and the Common Good

In a global culture driven by excessive individualism, our tradition proclaims that the person is not only sacred but also social. How we organize our society – in economics and politics, in law and policy – directly affects human dignity and the capacity of individuals to grow in community. Our Church teaches that the role of the government and other institutions is to protect human life and human dignity and promote the common good.

Rights and Responsibilities

Catholic tradition teaches that human dignity can be protected and a healthy community can be achieved only if human rights are protected and responsibilities are met. Therefore, every person has a fundamental right to life and a right to those things required for human decency. Corresponding to these rights are duties and responsibilities – to one another, to our families, and to the larger society.

Options for the Poor and Vulnerable

Catholic teaching proclaims that a basic moral test is how our most vulnerable members are faring. In a society marred by deepening divisions between rich and poor, our tradition recalls the story of the Last Judgment (Mt. 25) and instructs us to put the needs of the poor and vulnerable first.

Participation

All people have a right to participate in the economic, political, and cultural life of society. It is a fundamental demand of justice and a requirement for human dignity that all people be assured a minimum level of participation in the community. Conversely, it is wrong for a person or a group to be excluded unfairly or to be unable to participate in society. In the words of the U.S. bishops, “The ultimate injustice is for a person or group to be treated actively or abandoned passively as if they were non-members of the human race. To treat people this way is effectively to say they simply do not count as human beings.”

The Sophomore Campus Ministry Board

Explores Catholic Social Teaching

In the 1998 document “Sharing Catholic Social Teaching: Challenges and Directions” the US Catholic Bishops said the following: “Far too many Catholics are not familiar with the basic content of Catholic social teaching. More fundamentally, many Catholics do not adequately understand that the social teaching of the Church is an essential part of Catholic faith. This poses a serious challenge for all Catholics, since it weakens our capacity to be a Church that is true to the demands of the Gospel. We need to do more to share the social mission and message of our Church.”

The values of the Church’s social teaching must not be treated as tangential or optional. They must be a core part of teaching and formation. Without our social teaching, schools, catechetical programs, and other formation programs would be offering an incomplete presentation of our Catholic tradition. This would fall short of our mission and would be a serious loss for those in our educational and catechetical programs.”

Jesuit Schools have long been at the forefront of educating students about the Social Mission of the Church as we seek to help young people to develop as men “Committed to Justice.” The Prep’s efforts to familiarize students with this have taken many forms in the past few years. The Immigration Committee, comprised of both faculty and students, has participated in a national teach-in and helped the Prep community to understand the issue through the lens of Catholic Social Teaching through a variety of assemblies. This past fall Jim Keady, founder of Educating for Justice, addressed the sophomore class about his work to end the use of sweatshop labor by major clothing manufacturers. This spring a group of students will travel to Wheeling, West Virginia for the Ignatian Family Spring Teach-IN on Environmental Justice and Sustainability.

Many of the student leaders at the forefront of these issues come from our Campus Ministry Board where they are first exposed to Catholic Social Teaching in a formal way in sophomore year. As part of their weekly meeting they explore the ten principles of Catholic Social teaching and then try to apply them to contemporary social issues. This understanding of Catholic Social Teaching becomes the foundation for engaging the students in projects that promote justice. The hope is that this is the start of a life-long commitment to promoting justice as an essential part of living out their faith.

CATHOLIC SOCIAL TEACHING

Dignity of Work and Rights of Workers

In a marketplace where too often the quarterly bottom line takes precedence over the rights of workers, we believe that the economy must serve people, not the other way around. If the dignity of work is to be protected, then the basic rights of workers must be respected – the right to productive work, to decent and fair wages, to organize and join unions, to private property and to economic initiative.

Stewardship of Creation

Catholic tradition insists that we show our respect for the Creator by our stewardship of creation. We are called to protect people and the planet, living our faith in relationship with all of God’s creation. This environmental challenge has fundamental moral and ethical dimensions which cannot be ignored.

Solidarity

Catholic social teaching proclaims that we are our brothers’ and sisters’ keepers, wherever they live. We are one human family, whatever our national, racial, ethnic, economic, and ideological differences. Solidarity means that “loving our neighbor” has global dimensions in an interdependent world.

Role of Government

Because we are social beings, the state is natural to the person. Therefore, the state has a positive moral function. It is an instrument to promote human dignity, protect human rights, and build the common good. Its purpose is to assist citizens in fulfilling their responsibility to others in society. Since, in a large and complex society these responsibilities cannot adequately be carried out on a one-to-one basis, citizens need the help of government in fulfilling these responsibilities and promoting the common good.

Promotion of Peace

Catholic teaching promotes peace as a positive, action-oriented concept. In the words of Pope John Paul II, “Peace is not just the absence of war. It involves mutual respect and confidence between peoples and nations. It involves collaboration and binding agreements. There is a close relationship in Catholic teaching between peace and justice. Peace is the fruit of justice and is dependent upon right order among human beings.”

Steven Corso sent in this update: "I've been a high school Social Studies teacher for 28 years now. When the College Board first introduced the Advanced Placement World History course, I was one of the 'founders' here in NY, as my current school (John Glenn HS on Long Island) was among the few first to offer the course. Since then, I have graded the exam's essay sections for the College Board a number of times and have offered numerous workshops and presentations to teachers of the course on strategies for improving student essay writing for the exam and, in general. This past summer, I was invited as one of 34 high school and college World History instructors nation-wide to author a chapter of Teaching World History in the 21st Century, a resource manual for teachers published by M.E. Sharpe. The book has been published and is now in print. I would have to say, that any skill I have in terms of writing and, in turn, being able to impart those skills not only to my students, but also to my younger colleagues seeking guidance, is due to the education I received in my days at the Prep, though I certainly did not realize, nor adequately appreciate it at the time. It's nice to be a 'published author' here near the end of my career. Maybe it will serve as a springboard for 'career part 2' after I retire." Ned McCormack is the Director of Communications for Westchester County and a senior advisor to new County Executive Rob Astorino.

Class Notes

Washington, D.C. Area Alumni Reunion – March 24, 2010

HILTON EMBASSY ROW

Dear Mr. Curran,

I would like to take a minute to acknowledge something that I had the privilege of experiencing in respect to Fordham Prep. On March 24th, I attended an alumni get-together down here in Washington, D.C. hosted by Fr. Boller. I asked two friends of mine, one from American University and one from George Washington University, to join me in attending this event. Though none of us knew what to expect from this event, I have to admit that it was one of the most memorable events I have ever experienced.

Going to Fordham Prep, I had always heard that the alumni community was strong. But, as the Prep also preaches, hearing something and doing something are two very different things. Actually participating in an alumni gathering, where I had the honor of meeting Prep graduates from the 60's, 70's, 80's, and 90's, affected me in a way that is difficult to put into words. Seeing the Prep graduates possess an earnest desire to see how the Prep is still doing and how it has changed was something that impressed and touched me beyond belief.

Fr. Boller's presentation was outstanding. In addition to his talk about the Prep's current ongoings, Fr. Boller asked me to say a few words about Campus Ministry and then about the new Diversity Alliance at the Prep. I could not have been more honored to do so. After the event ended a few of the guys took me and my two friends out to a restaurant and there we talked well into the night, conversing over subjects such as our favorite teachers, worst jug stories, and most hilarious moments. By the end of the night our stories still had not been exhausted.

Going into that event without having a clue of what to expect and leaving that restaurant with a sense of pride, joy, and respect was such an incredible feeling that I knew I could not let this event go unknown to the rest of the Prep community. I had to share it with you. To know that the Prep community is indeed that strong, that caring, and brilliant was one of the proudest and fulfilling moments of my life. Leaving with a sense that my amazing years at the Prep do not just end after graduation was a feeling so awesome that I cannot wait to share in the experience again.

Though I am not even sure what purpose this email will serve, as I said before, to just go on with my life without letting someone directly connected to the Prep community about this amazing experience that the Prep sponsors did not seem right. Just when I thought I could not be more proud of my Jesuit education and remarkable experience at the Prep, I was happily proven wrong.

Oh, and by the way, Chuck says "Hi."

My Best,

James DeLucia, Class of '09
